

International Symposium on Nanophotonics and Nanomaterials 2014

January 15-17, 2014, Beijing, China

Second Circular

Much attention has been devoted to nanophotonics and nanomaterials in recent years. The International Symposium on Nanophotonics and Nanomaterials 2014 (ISONP2014) will strongly focus on future direction with presenting the forefront results pertaining to nanophotonics, plasmonics, metamaterials, biophotonics, nanofabrication and nanomaterials. This symposium has been the source for the exchange of visible ideas related to this active research area.

The origin of this symposium is that of Photonics in Asia in 2009. It has been continuously held for several years. The informal nature of the conference provides an especially fertile milieu for new ideas and collaboration. The format of the conference will be chosen to have the maximal interactions among world-renowned scientists and young researchers.
